Body camera footage of an officer-involved shooting from earlier this month may soon be made available to the public.

The Monroe County Sheriff's Office announced Friday its intent to release footage from the Aug. 7 incident, during which deputies shot 24-year-old Daniel Boyer of Bloomington. According to police, Boyer pointed a loaded handgun at deputies Don Teague and Deandre Moxley as they served arrest warrants at a mobile home in southwestern Monroe County.

In response, the two deputies fired their guns, striking Boyer four times. Boyer later died of his injuries.

Now that the Monroe County Prosecutor's Office has reviewed the case and determined there was no further action needed, Sheriff Brad Swain is offering Boyer's family the chance to review the footage.

The news release states that footage will be distributed to media after the private viewing takes place.
