Police responding to 911 call use lethal force

What happened: A 40-year-old man named Lemuel Bunn held his pregnant girlfriend in her Fayetteville apartment for hours, even after he stabbed her. Police answered her 911 call by breaking in and, when Bunn refused to drop a knife, fatally shooting him, according to Chief Gina Hawkins.

Why it matters: Hawkins said Tuesday after the incident that it appeared her officers did everything "on-point." State investigators will review their actions, which is standard in police shootings, and the officer who fired the shot will remain on administrative duty until then.
